

Mark Moore

Mark boasts eight years in the flood warning industry as a hydrologic specialist. Though his skill with data remains uncompromised, Mark thrives most when he can help educate others about the priority of flood warning and safety. He often attends public outreach events and national flood warning conferences for the purpose of educating himself and others. Mark Moore currently serves on the National Hydrologic Warning Council (NHWC) Board of Directors as one of the Directors-At-Large and on the ALERT technical working group.